The Social Science of Celebrations

In the heart of our land, where cultures meet, every festival is history's heartbeat.

From pages past to stories told, they keep our heritage rich and bold.

- History speaks through every cheer, of struggles fought, of dreams held dear. Independence Day waves the tricolor high, teaching the courage to reach the sky.

- In Civics whispers in every crowd, Equality's promise spoken loud. Holi's colors, in every hue, blend all hearts — both old and new.

- Geography paints the farmer's field, where harvests bloom and seasons yield. Baisakhi's gold, Pongal's delight, show nature's rhythm, pure and bright.

- Economics hums in festive streets, where markets buzz and trade repeats.

From handmade crafts to sweets we share, livelihood grows in the festive air.

Thus each celebration, both grand and small, holds the wisdom that unites us all.

Social Science lives in every cheer, Guiding hearts year after year.

Social Science and Diversity in Our Lives

Social science is an important part of our lives, as it provides us with a deeper understanding of society, culture, politics, economy, and history. This subject teaches us how diversity enriches and strengthens our lives.

In a vast country like India, diversity is clearly visible—in language, religion, customs, food, clothing, and lifestyle. Social science helps us understand that this diversity is not a weakness but our greatest strength. By respecting different communities and traditions, we can strengthen brotherhood and unity.

Through the study of social science, we imbibe values such as democracy, equality, justice, and freedom. When we accept different perspectives, society not only becomes more harmonious, but on a personal level, we also develop a sense of tolerance and cooperation.

In today's era of globalization, embracing diversity has become even more essential. Social science teaches us that instead of conflicting over differences, we should celebrate them like a festival. This approach leads us toward peace, development, and progress.

Thus, social science connects diversity to our lives and makes us realize that "Unity in diversity is our greatest identity."

Importance of Art and Craft For Students

In today's time, there are many types of effects on children which affect their physical and mental health. We do many activities to take children from physical and mental conditions to positive, in which art and craft comes first. By inclining children towards art and craft, many positive effects can be read on them. Like "Development of creativity" Art and craft promotes creativity in children, due to which they are able to express their thoughts and feelings. Recently we had organized a children's architecture competition in which children displayed their talent very well. This increases the confidence of children. Art and craft provides children a medium to express their feelings, due to which they can improve their emotional health. This reduces the stress of children and helps in reducing stress, social skills improve. The most important thing is that they get rid of looking at mobile phones, which is the biggest issue of concern for parents today, children eat food while looking at mobile, study while looking at mobile, when they show interest in art and craft, then this biggest evil of children goes away. Art and craft is an excellent activity for children that develops their creative problem solving skills and boosts their confidence and emotional expression.
